Let's learn HTML

HyperText Markup Language

HTML is the language used to build every website on the Internet

(It really is that important)

HTML defines the Structure and Content of a web page

(Not what it looks like – that comes later)

What do we mean by Structure?
